

Brightlight
coffee
Shop sales Analysis

Contents

- 01 Archived Percentage per store
- 02 Overall performance
- 03 What's drive our revenue
- 04 Product performs better
- 05 Product types performs better

Contents

06 Weekends vs Weekdays

07 Total Revenue

08 Key insight and summary

09 Strategic Recommendations

10 Closure

Archived Percentage per store

Hell's kitchen

The sales started very slow in Q1 then gradually started to pick up in Q2 contributing 33,9%

Astoria

The sales started very slow in Q1 then gradually started to pick up in Q2 contributing 33,23%

Low Manhattan

The sales started very slow in Q1 then gradually started to pick up in Q2 contributing 32,97%

Overall Performance

Our Q1 journey was one of resilience. While we started strong in January, we faced a significant challenge in February that impacted our performance. However, through the team's focused efforts, we not only recovered but achieved our strongest month in March, demonstrating our ability to adapt and grow in Q2 with a remarkable revenue incline

TOTAL REVENUE VS NUMBER OF SALES

What's drive our revenue

Coffee is the heart of our business, contributing 39% of our total revenue. This is followed by our Bakery and Tea offerings. This chart clearly shows where our core business lies, and which categories have room for growth

TOP 5 TOTAL PERFORMANCE REVENUE

Product performs better

All three store locations performed well. Generating the highest revenue. Interestingly, while Coffee leads everywhere, the best-selling specific product varies by location.

TOP 5 PRODUCT TYPE PERFORMANCE

What's product type preforms better

Within coffee, high-margin Barista Espresso drinks are our biggest revenue generators, followed by our Premium and Gourmet brewed coffees. This highlights the value of our skilled baristas and premium offerings

Weekends vs Weekdays

Our customers love their late morning pick-me-up, making it our most profitable time category. While weekdays bring consistent volume, weekends generate a significant portion of our revenue in fewer days, indicating higher transaction values or more leisure visits.

WEEKEND TOTAL REVENUE

■ AFTERNOON
■ DUSK
■ EVENING
■ LATE MORNING
■ MORNING

WEEKDAYS TOTAL REVENUE

■ AFTERNOON
■ DUSK
■ EVENING
■ LATE MORNING
■ MORNING

Total Revenue

698,81K

Key Insight and summary

- Strength: Coffee, specifically Barista Espresso drinks, is our powerhouse.
- Strength: Late Morning daypart is critical to our success.
- Opportunity: Weekend sales for Tea and Bakery show there's latent demand we can unlock on weekdays.
- Opportunity: Store-level best-sellers differ, suggesting potential for localized marketing and menu highlights

Strategic Recommendations

1. Amplify the Core: Launch a seasonal "Espresso Specials" menu to further boost our highest-margin category.
2. Boost Secondary Categories: Create and promote "Afternoon Tea & Pastry" bundles for weekdays between 2-4 PM.
3. Localize Marketing: Allow store managers to feature their top 3 local best-sellers on a highlighted menu board.
4. Optimize Labor: Ensure adequate barista staffing during the high-volume Late Morning rush across all locations.

Thank You

- Do you have any questions?